

The Wedding Brochure

David Collins has always had an interest in photography since he had his first camera aged 10 years old. Equipment and technology has moved on since David photographed using film, David is capturing all images using digital cameras. During the transition from film to digital David has photographed over a million people and counting.

These include Kermit the frog, Sir Cliff Richard, Professor Winston, Baldrick (Tony Robinson), Her Majesty the Queen and not forgetting the future King. However, not all of David's photography is about people.

David Collins is based in the city of Oxford, working both in and around the City and University. However, photography also takes David all over the United Kingdom and sometimes into other parts of Europe.

David Collins describes himself as friendly and approachable. David Collins likes to create a relaxed but professional atmosphere for clients and prides himself in producing images of a high quality.

The Getting ready shots.....

To record your wedding day in pictures is wonderful but you should not miss out on the Getting Ready Shots.

This can be formal, informal and relaxed.....

Fun, serious and sometimes crazy.....

Photography of the dress....

Photography of the Shoes....

The bottle or bottles of Bubbly.....

This is a great start to the Wedding Album...

Wedding Party Getting Ready

As the Guests arrive Photography commences.
Reportage style images of the Groom and his Grooms men...

Complimented by the formal and all important portrait style shots of the Groom and the Best man.
Capturing bridesmaids as they arrive just before the bride.

Photographs of Bride arriving captured in an informal style.
Photography continues into the ceremony.

Images captured during the ceremony are without flash and a discreet shutter action sound avoids distractions.

After the ceremony the formal selection of Family and friend group photographs including fun shots.

Photographs of the Bride and Groom, walking under a shower of confetti and departing for the reception venue.

The Wedding Ceremony

On arrival at the wedding reception for the first half hour you are left to meet and greet your family and friends.

This is the time for reportage photography.

Photography of guests at the wedding meeting and greeting.

The bride and groom are recommended to produce a wedding list of images.

This helps the bride and groom focus and talk about the photographs for their wedding day.

Family and friends are encouraged to join in photographing the posed groups. Their images can be included in the final wedding album.

Before the wedding breakfast the Bride and Groom are taken for a walk around the Reception for some formal and informal Portrait styled wedding images.

The Wedding Reception

The Speeches get the most amazing reactions...

While the Speeches are happening discreet photographs are taken of the on looking audience.

Emotions are at a high capturing the top table. Cringing Crying and Clapping...

Finally the Best Mans speech... This is the best time to capture those amazing facial reactions from the Groom

The first Dance gives the opportunity for some action styled photography... The images are enhanced by the Disco Lights.

The Speeches and First Dance

In the evening have a professional portrait studio at your wedding to capture the guest that attend the Evening reception.

If you have the Speeches and First Dance package you will receive The Evening studio complimentary.
